

“Children in remote areas don’t live in a consumer society like we do. One small gift would make their Christmas.”

- Bush Chaplain Jennie

Bush Chaplains and you: the Santa of the bush

Bush Chaplains are a direct channel to children who are excluded by the tyranny of distance.

Through your gift today, you’ll be reaching children who live in the most remote areas, bringing them the love and joy of Christmas and beyond.

Please give generously.

bringing joy and opportunity to children on the land

With your help, Bush Chaplains serve isolated communities often overlooked by other services.

Here are just some of the projects that your support makes possible this Christmas...

Christmas gifts for children who go without

Bush Chaplain Joe is planning to host a simple Christmas celebration in a remote community in Far North Queensland. Around 50 children, who would otherwise be going without, will have full tummies and presents to unwrap this Christmas.

Santa Sunny and his annual Christmas tour

Bush Chaplain Sunny will be traveling across his patch of the outback to deliver Christmas hampers. This year, he and Bush Chaplain Julia are working together to bring joy to even more people through gifts, Christmas services, and whatever practical support the communities need.

Christmas caroling with teenagers in Kalgoorlie

Bush Chaplain Lindsay has assembled a group of teenagers, his music students, to be his backing band for a special Christmas performance for elderly people in Kalgoorlie. Lindsay says, "This is a huge deal for the students as they are all quite new musicians. They're very excited about it."

Jumping on the Bush Bash bandwagon

Like last year, Bush Chaplain Jennie plans to join the Christmas for the Bush Bash team to travel around the bush, organising small gatherings, and giving away Christmas presents to families and children in remote communities, making sure no one misses out on Christmas.

